Map34 License Information

Map34 is licensed software developed and owned by Data Comm for Business, Inc. Each license allows its use with a single AM3440 controller card. The CDROM deliverable includes a current copy of the program, the manual, and some ancillary files such as instructional videos and data sheets.

This same information, and a copy of the Map34 program may be downloaded from the Data Comm for Business web site at http://www.dcbnet.com/download/index.html#map34

A license key for each AM3440 controller card must be obtained from DCB. To obtain that key and activate Map34, you must provide DCB with the serial number for the controller cards Map34 will be used to configure. This may be accomplished via phone, email, web-form or fax. DCB will then provide a license key for those controller cards via email, phone, or on paper.

If the controller card serial numbers were provided with the order, a license certificate will be included along with the CDROM.

When requesting the license keys, please have the following information available:
    Customer name and complete contact information
    Information to link the license to a license purchase
    Your preferred method of transmission (fax, email, US mail)
    Serial number of each controller card to be licensed
